

Patrolman Indicted For Slapping Face Of Negro Prisoner

Patrolman E. W. Ledbetter, who admitted in first criminal court Thursday in a larceny case that he had slapped the defendant in the case with his open hand, was indicted by the grand jury Friday on a charge of assault and battery.

Ledbetter was a witness in the larceny case of Herbert Smith, negro, Abe Cohn, attorney for the negro, in the course of his examination of the patrolman brought out the admission from the patrolman which brought him to grief.

Judge Richards ordered the jury out and questioned Ledbetter, after which he ordered a bench warrant for his arrest. Ledbetter made bond in the sum of $250 and was released.

R. E. Greer was indicted on a charge of assault on Mary Bickerstaff, a girl from Grenada, Miss.

The grand jury considered twenty bills of indictment, returning all 20 as true bills.

SNATCHES $550 FROM FAIR VISITOR; CAUGHT

Charles Chairs, 35, negro, is awaiting trial on charge of highway robbery for snatching a purse containing $550 from W. L. Arrington Wednesday.

Arrington is from Harris, Tenn. He came to Memphis for the Tri-State fair. Opening his purse on the street the negro saw the roll and in an instant had snatched it and began to run. He was caught.

Chairs police records show, has served three years in Tennessee state prison and six months in the city workhouse for similar offenses.

Accused Patrolman May Not Stand Trial

Unofficial information in the hands of Police Chief Joe Burney Thursday was that W. H. Singleton, patrolman, dismissed and summoned to appear before department officials, will not appear for trial.

Singleton is alleged to have followed a young woman living on Union avenue, and to have forced in the door to her room after she had rushed into the house and endeavored to escape his attentions. Singleton is said by officials to have been in an intoxicated condition and to have flourished a pistol.

Rev. William Crowe Will Preach Sunday

Rev. William Crowe, D.D., will preach at the Methodist Episcopal church at 25 S. Main, will return to Memphis to speak at a mass meeting in the interest of the anti-venereal campaign, to be held at the Second Presbyterian church Sunday night.

Dr. Crowe will also preach to his old congregation at the Methodist church Sunday morning.

NEGRO RELEASED FROM WORKHOUSE

Mose Parks, negro, was given his release from the workhouse Friday by Probate Judge F. M. Guthrie on a writ of habeas corpus, heard in his court.

It was proven in court that Parks was refused the right to consult with his attorney when incarcerated in city prison on a charge of cruelty to animals. Other proof showed that Parks was found guilty and committed to the workhouse to pay out his fine of $25 on a mittimus before the warrant for his arrest was ever issued.

DECLINES APPOINTMENT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Frank C. Bailey, of Indianapolis, recently appointed assistant to the attorney-general, has declined the post, "for business and personal reasons," according to a statement issued at the White House.

Mr. Bailey was named to succeed C. B. Ames, resigned.

GAIN IN CONSTRUCTION OF HOUSES IS SHOWN

City building permits for the month of September aggregated $242,155, which is $22,165 more than for August, according to a report issued by Dan C. Dewton, city building inspector. This report shows the September, 1919, total as $199,440.

The number of permits for homes in September was 39, while for August it was 19, a gain of 20. The total value was $97,350, or $51,350 more than August.

Larger permits include one for a brick apartment, one for a brick mercantile building, one for an assembly hall, and one concrete block warehouse.

Taylor Works For Press, But Actor Didn't Understand

W. Vannah Taylor is the press agent for the Orpheum.

Friday he ventured back of the stage to call on Billie Gaxton, actor. So it seems Gaxton was dressing when Taylor knocked on the dressing room door. Gaxton called:

"Who is it?"

"Taylor," came the reply from the P. A., who was seeking dope for some newspaper stories. "Anything for the press today?"

Gaxton tossed a pair of trousers outside.

AWARDED FIRST PRIZE At University of Pennsylvania

The students of the Wharton School of Business and Finance of the University of Pennsylvania were recently required to submit essays on merchandising. Over seven hundred were submitted and the essay winning the first prize was written by Mr. William W. Goodman, of Memphis, son of Mr. Abe Goodman, President of the Commercial Trust & Savings Bank of this city. Mr. Goodman chose PIGGLY WIGGLY as his subject. Below will be found a few extracts from his essay:

They were organized to be established as a national organization of a standardized type, and with standardized methods that such stores might run their service, throughout the world by providing economical means for the retail distribution of food products of a wide variety. There has not at any time been a similar attempt to standardize a store to deal in food products, and there is not in the full record of merchandising any success that will approach the success that has been achieved in the establishment and the development of the PIGGLY WIGGLY system of stores.

Perhaps no chain of stores that has been organized in recent years has been the object of so much curiosity and speculation as has this system.

PIGGLY WIGGLY is really more than a store. It is a whole system of selling groceries, based on the cafeteria idea. The plan introduces so many innovations and depicts so widely from traditional retail methods that it is well worth the analysis of all those who are interested in distribution.

They show that there is order in arrangement of the display; that there is convenience afforded through the aisle system; that each store has in its display of merchandise a most comprehensive assortment of food products of nationally known reputation that is four to six times greater than is ordinarily found in the so-called chain store. This selection allows the customer to choose the variety, brand and quantity desired. The manufacturer obtains absolute fair display of his particular brand in competition with other brands of similar character of merchandise. A twining price tag at the time of selection indicates the price in plain figures as to just what will be collected at the checking counter when the customer has finished making selections and is ready to depart from the store.

Like everything else about these unusual stores, the advertising is decidedly different. Mr. Saunders believes strongly in advertising his ideas and the enterprises with which he is connected. He has a strikingly individual style. Some of the copy might be called bizarre. Usually generous space is employed which is packed with reading matter. These advertisements follow the general policy and are copyrighted. As most of these advertisements have special public interest, the reading public soon gets into the habit of reading them as it would any news article.

The manufacturer's own brands—commonly known as trademarked or advertised brands—are to be given preference in the assortment of PIGGLY WIGGLY stocks so long as fair dealing and a co-operative spirit is manifest on the part of such manufacturers in their attitude towards PIGGLY WIGGLY as a system of merchandising.

In conclusion, about the only thing that I can say is to repeat the statement that I made early in this thesis—no other comment is necessary. "In the full record of all merchandising history there is no success that approaches that achievement in the establishment and development of the PIGGLY WIGGLY system of stores." Their growth has only been limited to the programme of conservative expansion adopted by the management—One new store a day.
